Audio software.Q: AWS EC2 Auto Scaling Group with Minimal Instances and Toleration I have an IAM Role which has many policies attached to it. One of the policies is attached to Auto Scaling Group ASG and allows Launch Configuration to be created. I would like to specify a Minimal Instance Size of '1' and a Maximum Instance Size of '5' and I would also like to create a Conditional Toleration to terminate the instance if it gets a certain event. In my understanding, this seems to require a different approach than the way I would normally manage ASG. For example, say that I have a LaunchConfiguration attached to ASG that has an AMI with a max of 5 instances and a min of 1 instance. How do I specify minInstances 1 and maxInstances 5 and also terminate a container that gets a certain event? A: The syntax for minInstances and maxInstances is as follows: For example: 5 1 The issue is that the AutoScalingGroup is changing the state of the resources that it has access to. So, with the current configuration of your role, if you try to create a scaling group with only 1 instance, the scaling group will not allow it because it would violate the maxInstances constraint. In the example above, you would need to then create an instance of the scaling group with two instances to satisfy the minInstances constraint. If you 3da54e8ca3
