I am not sure if this is possible, but is there any way to set custom reply message for a form submission (for example: a page where forms are submitted) So that users will always know what to do when they submit. or for example when they submit a form, it adds a custom custom notification which has to be seen instead of the users having to wait for a page refresh before they can proceed. The custom message for a form submission will be stored in local storage upon submission and displayed on the next page instead of a generic message. Here is the script I am currently using for this: A: It's not possible to do that; the form submission will always reload a new page and send a new POST request to the server. This won't be possible unless you use cookies to store and re-read the data after the form submission; I would suggest to use a JS library like PHP Form Handling Scripts (which is written using PHP to make it easy to use). Sheffield Wednesday: Owen Coyle has said he will fight to prevent Michael Doyle from joining a new team Sheffield Wednesday have given permission to their rivals Huddersfield Town to speak to Michael

Doyle about a switch. The Owls would like to sign the 20-year-old on a long-term contract and are only in the fortunate position to do so because the price has been set at a discounted rate. Read More However, their owner Dejphon Chansiri - who has shown patience in the past - wants to put a greater cash offer on the table before any deal can be considered. Huddersfield's chief financial officer Jon Evans has said that a meeting with Doyle is possible, but he recognises there has to be a genuine offer on the table before anything concrete can happen. And for his part, Chansiri was happy to accede to that request, stating: "We will need to be realistic about the situation." Related links Graham Turner's men edged out of the playoffs on Monday Night Football, but sent the Owls to Wembley with their FA Cup hopes still very much alive. Skipper José Izquierdo said: "We're really proud of the way we got it done on the last day of the season. "We are still 3e33713323
