The file has 4 different types of data inside it. These types of data are found in the first few lines of the file. I am trying to load the header data, but the output looks like this: start of file DATA1 DATA2 DATA3 DATA4 The first line of the file has 4 different data types, which are separated by a tab. Is there a way to load this info into a structure as seen below? I am using a word file. What I want to do is read in the header information. Instead of having it print out on the screen, I want to put them inside a structure. For example, if the header data is "Data1" I want to have a "DATA1" inside the Structure. I have been researching how to load the file, but none of the information I have found is related to my problem. hFile = fopen("
