"Fans have responded very well to the hyper-realism and authenticity of FIFA 18, but we want to take it to another level this year by bringing a real physical dimension to the game," said David Rutter, FIFA Lead Producer. "The performance of the new engine delivers the level of detail and physics that game fans have come to expect, and at the same time delivers a level of intelligence and understanding that makes it feel very alive. This is the start of a new era for FIFA on consoles." Football fans can experience the HyperMotion Technology immediately through online modes where users can create a single player or a small team of their own and test their players' ability to reproduce the intensity and emotions of a match. Online creators will also have the opportunity to build their own stadium experiences or create goal celebrations, allowing players the chance to hone their own individual skills and highlight personal improvements. Cards for the legendary players of the football world, including Cristiano Ronaldo, Lionel Messi, Ronaldo Nazário and Pele, have been redesigned in FIFA 22 for a more precise, authentic and visually-impactful experience. Players' unique kit and iconic celebrations will also be reflected in the game's in-game animation engine for a more detailed and more meaningful representation of players' individual play styles. FIFA 22 also brings new ways to capture and share moments from matches, with the all-new FreestyleTV mode which will be available for the first time in the FIFA franchise, allowing fans to play a new type of game where they can control the camera and shape their own unique gameplay experience. Take on live league matches with the ultimate on-pitch intelligence by using the new ball mechanics which make players smarter and more reactive when tackling and manipulating the ball on the pitch. FreestyleTV enables users to recreate and share highlights in an entirely new way and the new in-game TV (Widescreen) brings a crisper and more dynamic presentation of your game to the big screen. FIFA 22 is set for release worldwide on September 29th on PlayStation 4, Xbox One, and PC. A complete edition of FIFA 22 is available for PC players today at where they can download the game and enjoy exclusive offers with bonus content at launch. □FUT 22□FIFA Ultimate Team also comes to the PlayStation 4 with improved gameplay, new rewards, and more ways to play. Players can now transfer line-ups (or entire sides) to create completely new line-ups, creating new story-line outcomes in matches. In Career Mode, players can choose to focus on improving their attributes or their Team Rating. In Pro Clubs, players will now be able to sign up to 20 players at once. Players can now submit squads to EA, where a select group of FIFA community experts will choose the best squads to submit. Fans will also have the ability to create and share customised tifos to celebrate goals, substitutions, and moments throughout a match. Skills - This new feature allows players to focus on any particular area of the game for continuous improvement. Before the game, players can set their needs and progress their skills in high, medium, and low priority levels, plus choose from a variety of different practice drills. Different activities include up to five minutes of challenges and training drills and one minute of dedicated, focused challenges. Made in Brazil - The importance of developing a world-class FIFA mobile game has been underscored by the Brazilian-centric localisation of FIFA Mobile Brazil. Players will be able to train at iconic stadiums in Rio de Janeiro, be taught how to dribble and throw the furtive pass, and compete in local tournaments. Brazilian-branded cards and characters will also be made available to help players get to grips with the different ways football is played in the south-American country. Some content will be made available in English, making Brazil FIFA Mobile's first authentic English-language experience. PRO Clubs - An overhauled version of Pro Clubs brings new experience to management and featuring. Players can now establish their own academy, competing for the best player talent in Brazil and across the globe. Additionally, players can now team up with other clubs from around the world and win a league for the first time. Players can also now establish all-new functional kits that will help them define themselves both on and off the pitch. Furthermore, players can now design their own visual and technical kits for every player position. Career Mode - Players will have the ability to fast-forward and rewind matches or choose from previous footage on their quest to become the best. As players progress through a career, they'll be able to manage their own contract and negotiate new contract extensions or release on a player. Players will be
