Some thoughts on the 2018 MLB Draft... On Friday, the first round of the MLB Draft was completed. I wrote a piece a week or so ago about where I thought the top 15-20 players would be drafted. I also go through a lot of various evaluations and thoughts on this year's draft class on Draft Blueprint. Here's my updated top 40, with my original top 15-20 players in brackets.

1. Casey Mize, RHP - Auburn (1) - Mize is the best pitcher in the draft and has done nothing to diminish that perception in his first two years on the mound. If you look at the top six prospects in the draft class, Mize is the clear cut best of the group. I know some people think Mize's low walk rate and high strikeout rate will come back to bite him in pro ball, but I don't think you can find many scouts that think that is true. Mize is going to be a first-round pick in all but a few mock drafts.
2. Jo Adell, OF - California (2) - I still think this is a great draft but there isn't much separation between the top two players, though Adell has risen a lot in my rankings. I still think Adell projects as a middle-of-the-order hitter with plus speed and a plus arm. He has a wiry frame with 5'10", 180 lbs. and there's not many who think he's more than average defender.
3. MacKenzie Gore, LHP - South Carolina (4) - I do think there is more separation here than I initially expected, but Gore is still a safe top 10 pick. Despite the potential for a decrease in velocity over
