How can I fix this problem?1993 National League Championship Series The 1993 National League Championship Series (NLCS) was a best-of-seven playoff between the National League West Division champion San Diego Padres and the National League East Division champion Philadelphia Phillies. The Phillies defeated the Padres in seven games to win their fifth consecutive National League pennant and their seventh in eight years. The Phillies' postseason run was highlighted by an emotional comeback after being down three games to the Reds in the 1992 NLDS. Facing elimination, Philadelphia won seven straight games, including a walk-off, game-winning homerun by Mike Schmidt on his last at-bat. The Phillies then swept the Cardinals and Dodgers to win the World Series for the first time since 1981. Path to the Series San Diego Padres The San Diego Padres were the National League West Division champions, having finished the regular season with an 88-74 record. The Padres played in an elimination game, beating the Colorado Rockies by the score of 5-4. Game 5 of the NLCS was decided by a walk-off home run by former Phillie Mike Cameron, who hit a game-winning, walk-off two-run homerun in the 10th inning of the game. The game, which won Game 2 of the series by the score of 4-2, was the first extra-inning postseason game at PETCO Park. Philadelphia Phillies The Philadelphia Phillies had finished with an 89-73 record in the regular season, and were the National League East Division champions. The Phillies had played two elimination games at home: a two-game sweep of the Atlanta Braves, and then a come-from-behind, 7-6 win over the Montreal Expos to clinch the division, also at Philadelphia. Game 3 of the NLCS was the first playoff game in Philadelphia since Game 2 of the 1982 World Series at the Veterans Stadium. Summary Matchups Game 1 The Padres won the first game of the series with relief help from Mark Langston, who pitched four scoreless innings of relief in the ninth inning. Jeff Reardon

College freshman Taylor Gumkowski's first meal With the 13 Wolverines of the 2015-2016 school year, the University of Michigan campus may be a little less intimidating. Freshman Taylor Gumkowski says there are now only 13 people she has to put up with at any given time, and she has no longer the burden of having to find a way to fit everything into her suitcase each weekend. Gumkowski will lead the contingent of 109 Wolverines who have just arrived in Ann Arbor this afternoon. She explained her first meal is an important part of the transition into college. "My first meal yesterday, I went by myself, because I didn't want to make any loud noise," Gumkowski said. "I think that's a good way to work up to making a little more noise and getting used to the people here and what's going on around here." Gumkowski, a native of Colorado and a leader of her team at Los Fresnos High School, will be the 12th player to represent the Wolverines on the court this season. Not all the students who attend the University of Michigan leave after their freshman year. The 14 in Gumkowski's class are joined by two more transferring in, leaving a total of 17 students who have changed their residence to Ann Arbor. "Some people we've known for a while, and there are people here we don't know," Gumkowski said. "Some are good, some are bad, but I think that's a pretty good thing, in my opinion. It's kind of nice to just be thrown in with the fish." Gumkowski learned about the University of Michigan while playing AAU ball for the Platte Mountain's girls program. Her parents sent her a prospectus, and she thought the school and school town were everything she had hoped they would be. "I was born and 6d1f23a050
