
Simatic Key Installer 2013 13

our certification classes are intense, hands-on courses which will show you where and how to find and use technology related information. we give you the practical knowledge to install and build your own systems, and enable you to troubleshoot networks using tried and true diagnostic methods and tools. these courses are never based on sales or marketing pitches and focus on the vendor neutral details of the technology. you need to learn how the underlying technology works from the application to the frame level and pass both a practical and written exam to become certified. you will receive 24 pdh hours and two certificates (profinet engineer + installer) from profinet international (pi) for completing the course. the model is selected by the software or in the configuration of the device in the configuration of the device. the software can also be configured at the system operator level for the model. you can use the model selection tool to change the selection of the simatic et 200a model. this can be done in the following way: you can also integrate up to four additional fields in the datastudio gui, which can be used as additional data. you can use these fields to display additional information or a link to the simatic key installer 2013. finally, you can create a new report to display the additional data, which you can use to report on data or to display the additional information in a table, for example. to do this, you create a report based on the new report and add the additional fields to the report. you then modify the report to include the additional fields.
